On Wednesday, February, 11 I was invited to talk before the teachers of the Department of Foreign Languages for Humanities and the students of the Faculty of Philosophy and Political Studies regarding issues of ecology. Our students have presented their PPTs, verses and songs while I have addressed Denmark of the 90-th I had visited by the invitation of “Lille Kazakhlstan” (“Little Kazakhstan”) ecological group. There one could see natural parks, where everybody on one’s own will might give up to use electric power and heating, as well as learn hunting, fishing and grinding the flour for breakfast. A friend of mine, writer Ingeborg Christmas-Moeller at that time lived in the Lejre Park with her two sons. Ecology of society is in fact lots of personal ecologies, in other words our corporative ability to save water, work on the land, teach and learn more how to keep taking care of the birds in winter, gardening and refusing from some of unnecessary things to be able providing or attending charity actions, since a part of charity is giving up from unlimited consumption. In our next report we would like to post students presentations, if we receive them. See pictures attached taken by Erkesh Artykova.
