Summary. Communicative competence of language personality is relevant object of research in modern linguistics and related sciences. Definition of communicative competence and studying of its structure represents the specific theoretical and practical importance for understanding of the process of nonnative language assimilation by secondary language personality. In the article definition of communicative competence and possible ways of this object research are given.