FOREWORD

Practice of Oral and Written Speech of Arabic, as an Eastern language, is one of the basic disciplines being studied by the students of Oriental Studies faculty and specialty of Kazakhstan Higher education program. It provides a comprehensive program for bachelor students in the early stages of learning the Arabic language.

Practice of Oral and Written Speech of the Arabic language is one of the most interesting and difficult disciplines to be studied by future specialists of Oriental Studies, particularly Arabic studies. The discipline consists of two main skills of language, one of them is speaking and the second is writing. The title of the book was given based on the name of the discipline in the Curriculum of the specialty "Oriental Studies". So, the book consists of two parts; the first of which focuses on speaking, while the other focuses on writing. The difficulty is due to the large amount of information used in these two parts, in particular 15 topics from different areas, teaching material, the complexity of the issues that require a good knowledge not only of practical work, but of the theory of Arabic, particularly grammar materials.

The educational manual consists of 15 topics, included the main dialogues and essays as introducing yourself, the family, specialty, four seasons, house, shopping, at the airport, sports, at the doctor's, the culture, at the bank, holiday. One of the advantages of the educational manual is that it was prepared in both English and Arabic, which is especially important for groups with English language training and groups with Kazakh and Russian languages to improve their skills in two foreign languages. Every text is followed by a text to check and develop reading, listening, speaking, and writing skills of students. It will help to train specialists of Arabic.

Dialogues and essays on any topic are accompanied by the exercises to revise the knowledge being acquired as the result of training. The practical part of training on the oral and written language is organized during the first and the third years of study, so the texts included in the educational manual are of small and medium sizes.

This educational manual develops the skills of the formal Arabic language, including speaking, writing, listening, reading, and cultural knowledge. In addition to the main material of the discipline, the educational manual includes an Arabic-English glossary of words in three languages, tasks for the individual work of the students, tasks for students work under the guidance of the teacher, list of the references, and exam questions.
