ISBN 978-601-04-4233-7

This practical guide includes topics studied in this course, under the current anti-corruption law. This practical guide contains general guidelines, calendar-thematic plan (syllabus) of the course, a list of questions for seminars, exam questions with short answers.

It also includes 350 specially prepared test questions (closed) on the most significant components of the course, which will allow evaluating the learned material on specific topics of the course, as well as independent preparing both for seminar (practical) classes, and for exams. Reference information on foreign experience in combating corruption, as well as educational terminological dictionary will help to acquire in-depth knowledge.

This practical guide includes 40 case studies, most of which are based on specific criminal offenses committed in various regions of Kazakhstan. Answers to the questions posed in these case studies are directed first of all, to refine and consolidate the skills of students on the problems of legal responsibility for various criminal offenses of corruption, as well as the development of skills for independent work on the application of anti-corruption legislation and the enhancement of legal qualifications in the context of changing and developing legal realities in practice.

The workshop is intended for lecturers and bachelors of legal departments of universities and faculties in the Republic of Kazakhstan, as well as the candidates for admission to the civil service to help the latter independently prepare for testing under current anti-corruption legislation.
