Learning process is constantly improved and developed by using new available resources or technologies. Today people can master any profession or acquire a new skill without leaving their homes with the help of massive internet courses. Besides under COVID-19 the learning process has undergone significant changes and transformations connected with the implementation of internet tools into the learning process. This paper will discuss the internet tools used in the English classroom. The first tool which will be considered is plot -generator (<https://www.plot-generator.org.uk/>). This tool is aimed at generating texts of different genres and types from short and trivial mini-stories to serious novels and film scripts. Plot-generator promotes the development of students' writing skills and extensive vocabulary enlargement. It can be employed in the language groups of Pre-Intermediate and Intermediate levels. The main advantage of this tool is that the artificial intellect guides students when they start generating their texts in English language. It is very helpful when the teacher asks students to write a mini-story, a letter, or an essay. Plot-generator provides the students with an insight into grammatical order of English sentences and lexical shades of English words. When learners start working in plot-generator program they should choose the type of their future text. Having chosen the type, they should do the next step which assumes the choice of the text parameters: the names of the protagonists, the features of the place, the description of the story characters and so on. Learners should type their answers in the special boxes. At this stage they are given special prompts in the form of questions. Using these questions learners can easily select necessary words. If students face difficulties the program can offer its variants by clicking the button: "suggest". When learners click on this button the program automatically shows its variants. The given tool is designed for English learners and they can utilize this website in the process of mastering writing skills. It can be their first step to reaching the level of independent text generation in English.

The second internet tool that is also can be resourceful in English online learning process is the website: <https://www.ego4u.com/en/cram-up/grammar> which can be used to improve grammar skills. When a student has a gap on a certain grammar topic a teacher can send him or her to the link given above where they can fill their gap in knowledge. The plus of this site is its availability for everyone, clear explanations of grammar rules and exercises provided with the automatic check. This site can be very helpful in the preparation for entrance exams for master and PhD degree program on English language.

The third tool is <https://www.esolcourses.com/> . The given platform is similar to the previous one but compared with the first platform this one has a full set of exercises aimed at developing all four skills: speaking, listening, writing and reading. Besides it covers tasks for all levels from elementary to advanced. Each level includes listening, speaking, reading and writing activities on the most burning topics of everyday's life. The given website can be employed by the teacher as a home task resources for students in online learning. The last tool is called memrise which enriches students' vocabulary. This tool reminds quiz let a little. However, in comparison with the last one it is provided with videos and electronic vocabulary tests. This tool can be utilized in learning different languages. Due to short videos and tests students can quickly learn expressions and words for everyday's communication.

In conclusion one can say that all the internet tools listed above are helpful in the teaching online process of English language as they are available and free. They can be used both in the classroom and for independent learning.
